BIG ESTATE A GOUGER.

Gerard Interests Insist on Getting $3.10 a Ton for Their Lines.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

While the city dweller faces the possibility of a coal famine this winter, with coal prices fluctuating ac fast that no coal dealer will assure a price, the big question is: What is to be done about it?

The Evening World finds, on investigation in the coal field, that one of the big elements that has boosted coal prices is that the coal interests and the railread interests are in the same profest, and they would rather send the coal a longer distance than to New York, because they make more money that way. That is why cost goes to Canada and other places rather than to a point as close to the mines as New York Oity. The other big feature is the coal landlords'

'ALL MUSH,' SAYS PARSONS, REFERRING TO HARDING'S VIOLENT ATTACK ON LEAGUE

Former President of the Republican County Committee Writes Stinging Letter of Resignation to Samuel S. Koenig, Republican "Boss," and Comes Out for Cox.

Herbert Parsons, former Chairman of the Republican County Committee, to-day sent his resignation as a member of the Republican County Committee to Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman, and at the same time announced that he was going to vote for Cox on the issue of the League of

Mr. Parson's letter follows: Hon. Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman Republican County Committee, No. 105 West 40th Street:

'My Dear Chairman-I hereby resign from the Republican County Committee, no longer being a Republican under the law. Cox for President. I am for the League of Nations. Cox is for 'going in;' Harding is not for 'going in,' though in the Senate he voted for 'going in.' So I am for Cox.

"The League of Nations offers the one practical opportunity for this generation to unite the nations in an effort to prevent war and effect disarmament. Democracies only make striking changes under the stress of great emotions.

"It was while fresh with the ecollection of the millions of lives dured and the billions of property destroyed that the people of the world would, if at all, couse themselves to an arrangements designed to prevent repetitions of such a borror.

"The fainter the recollection became, the less was the likelihood of action. We are told that the American people are tired of the League. They will be more tired of it after March 4th. Less, will be possible then thus now.

Harding's real policy will be to do-not what honor or the peace of the world requires, but what he will be aqueezed into doing by the opposing pressures of the conflicting forces supporting him. It may be nothing at all so long as it serves as a compromise to preserve harmony in the Republican Party and make possible continued Republican control of

"Harding's expressions scattered through his speeches about an Association of Nations, an amended League and preserving what is good in the treaty-expressions plainly designed, expressions equally designed to give, to those who wish the League scrappedhave induced many distinguished Republicans, who desire to see the United States enter the League, to support Harding.

"They are being deceived. Hardwill not accomplish anything constructive. ALL HIS TALK IS MUSH. He says he has no international programme and that it is folly to be specific. He is a member of the Senate and of its Committe on Foreign Relations and has thus had before him the treaty and the League for over a year and he now says that he does not know what should be done. He never will know what should be done. He never will know he is negative and sentimental. On one point he is definite, he is not for what, after a year's consideration, he voted for in the Senate, the League with the Lodge reservations, although this is the solution which would come nearest to satisfying American aspirations and is substantially what will work out by the election of Con-

"An International Court is not sufficient. I would not have stopped the great war. One naflos cannot prevent war. The nations must unite. Most of them Baye.

"To insist that the thirty-eight who have now joined the League formake it and go into an association of nations which is to be designed along American lines when Harding discovers what those are is no way to promote friendly relations between them and us.

"The laste is not between the League as Wilson brought it and the League with reservations. The situation is the Senate to such that the treaty current be mitted in the form in which Wilson brought it. There will be reservations such as will relieve America. of obligations even moral, under Article X, and will render Congreen wholly free to declare war or not in any given case.

The Lucue to the American voter is between going into the League with reservations and not going into it at all. Harding is and will be for not going into it at mil. The only likelihood that the United States will, under Harding, onter the League is that he will find it impossible to erect an association of nations or a new League and so will have to ernwi into this one,

"In politics the man who is ignorant or a straddler or a sentimentalist (by which I mean a man who is uncluous in take but a otpher in action) compromises only one way and that is the way of those who know what they want and are determined to have it. Harding's delay and futuity will result in the scrapping of the league, if America's shetsini from it can scrap it, for he will be willing to sacrifice the League, even the World Court as part of it.

to the comfort of harmony. "The cause, the greatest in our day, calls for the ampressive or tive leadership of Cox, not the self-confessed ignorance of Hard-ing. No struddler can lead a

But before the war I was for a League of Nations. My experi-ences during the war, which as you know, were at fairly close range, strengthened this convicvent future war and, therefore, since the war I have been for the League of Nations.

League of Nations.

"To me it is monstrously immorak not to go into the League at all and to let slip this one opportunity to join in a great effort to prevent future war.

"I shall vote therefore for Cox as the certain way to have the linted States join the League and do her full share to preserve the peace of the world by reserve.
